My dear Mr Miller: Your letter reached me this morning, & I am happy to tell you Dr Miller, is still improving. Dr Will Miller left for Sevenson the 16th. We are very careful about his diet & will be for a long time, we give him beef-tee, buttermilk and for first time to day chicken broth, it will be a week or more before he can have solid food, for its just as you say now is the critical time, for if not careful about his diet, a relapse would follow sure, he slept fine, all last night ask the nurse to turn him over three times & then would go right back to sleep, all he needs now is to have perfect rest, & the right kind of food, & he shall certainly have it. We thought best not to read any letters to him for the best thing excites him & runs his fever away fast, I have tried to save all of your letters for him to read when he is better, for then he will appreciate his father all the more, for you have been a true father in every sense & the kind that is to be appreciated it is a real thing for me to say, but my father & mother were both taken away from me in early childhood, but the best way do is to believe every thing is for the best.

Just as soon as he is able I shall let him read your letters, he hasn't even a paper ~~even~~ even about Mc Kinley, but I'm saving every paper for him, I have already & all ways expect to, to do everything for his happiness, for he is the dearest person in this world to me, I love him more right now than my life, so you will see from that speech I will do all in my power for your dear son. The weather is much colder now, another thing in his favor.
We have a fire in his room this morning. He said just awhile ago will you write a few lines to "Pap" for me, he said I do wish I could see him but I will just as soon as I'm able to travel.
